RE: Docket Numbers: 98N-1230, 97P-0197, 96P-0418

Dear FDA:

By allowing the practice of forced molting in laying hens, Salmonella enteriditis is being allowed to flourish, and the FDA is not protecting human health. Merely putting bacteria warning labels on egg cartons is silly, and regulating refrigeration temperatures is not sufficient.

The FDA was petitioned in April 1998 to ban forced molting. This petition should be granted immediately. The practice of starving hens has been scientifically shown to promote disease by destroying their immune systems, predisposing the birds and their eggs to Salmonella poisoning. The FDA has the authority to end forced molting, which is a primary cause of infectious disease in hens, eggs, and the people who eat eggs.

To intentionally starve any living creature is cruel, and as a result, people are also suffering from this situation, which breeds contamination.

Please stop the practice of forced molting!

Sincerely,

Mrs. Douglas Long
